PREVIEW OF ADDITIONAL LISTINGS FOR FALL 1957

Growing under ideal conditions and with the very best of growing techniques, cultivation and irrigation will produce the finest quality Walnut trees that money can buy. They will be just right for you to offer to your retail customers in the coming season, Fall, 1957.

Pictured above is a block of vigorous native Persimmon root stock. They will be budded in early Spring to Tanenashi and Eureka Persimmons. Being kept in a vigorous, thrifty condition they will transplant well. They will make extra nice trees for your retail trade in the Fall of 1957.

Other new items that will be offered next year include Apples, Cherries and Flowering Crab. In the expansion of our fruit tree program larger quantities of all items will be available. All fruit stocks will be heavy, well-developed stock. They will be machine dug for the finest root system possible.

Pictured above is a block of over 100,000 Pecan seedlings, another indication of our enlarged growing program. Selected seed was hand planted during February. This picture was taken during mid-August. Note the excellent growth made in only six months. Budding of these understocks will take place a year from now. The first saleable trees will be ready to go the fall season of 1958.

Grown in a good rich loam soil with no fertilization of any kind, plus an abundance of irrigation water properly applied will produce a Pecan tree of unexcelled quality. Proper digging, storing, and handling further adds to the reason why they will transplant with an unusually high degree of success.

PECAN TREES

Every year we have several thousand well developed Pecan Trees available. Each tree is individually priced according to caliper, top development, root structure and overall quality. For that reason it is impossible to make an intelligent listing for this catalog. The majority of the trees are heavily developed stock wholesaling between five and fifteen dollars each—the type that are ideal for retail yard sales. Some of the grafted varieties available are:
